Fr. Fred K. Bailey and the
Santa Clara de Asis Pastoral Team

Dear Friends:

A New Year filled with new possibilities, opportunities and enjoyments (not to mention the accompanying struggles, set-backs and disappointments.) Here we go!

With the arrival of January, I know many of your minds/hearts are ALREADY attuned to the approach of what we USED TO CALL, the PSA (Pastoral Services Appeal) but going forward will NOW be called, the SANTA CLARA DEVELOPMENT CAMPAIGN...the vehicle by which we will ANNUALLY solicit our Community to SUBSTANTIALLY PLEDGE toward the eventual construction of our Permanent Church and Youth Ministry/Office Structures. At the end of 2018 our Development Team (Frank Weber, Tad Dike, Larry McCarty, Barry Murdock, Lisa Alonso and Pat DeFriese along with myself and Seminarian Cheeyoon) selected Charles Kluger of Kluger Architects to be THE architect that will design and oversee the completion of our Santa Clara campus. A winnowing process that started with over 10 potential architects, that was narrowed to five and then finally a series of meals, meetings and discussions with the TOP TWO candidates, Mr. Kluger and his architectural firm emerged as the architects with whom we wished to be associated. Mr. Kluger and I have already enjoyed a series of 'visioning' meetings and walk-about from which the initial conceptual drawings will emerge. These will be followed by multiple tweaking's and refinements until the final graphic documents will emerge that, on paper, will BE the complete vision for Santa Clara's structural future. This is a HUGE step forward toward our eventual build-out and I look forward to introducing you to Mr. Kluger in future months as our long-term relationship gets rolling. Let me be clear....this is a LONG-TERM effort, we still need to have all our construction monies ($13-$14 million) in the bank prior to breaking ground but we will soon have visual representation of what our completed home will resemble and in which you can imagine yourselves worshipping and enjoying Santa Clara life. More to come...especially as the 2019 Development Campaign Material starts to come your way...please look for it...read it, pray on it, and pledge on it. Our future depends on YOU!

As I mentioned back in December, I am VERY excited and humbled with how our April 19th, 2019 Good Friday Prayer Breakfast is developing. After last year's wonderful/regrettable 'sell-out' of available seats at our OLD location of the Anaheim Hills Country Club (wonderful in that Dr. Henry Oster, a Holocaust survivor, was soooo positively received / regrettable in that all the seats were sold BEFORE the printed invitations had even arrived in your mail-boxes!) THIS year we are excited with our NEW LOCATION within the Grand Ballroom at the Anaheim Sheraton Park Hotel, (1855 South Harbor Boulevard, Anaheim, CA 92802) adjacent to the BIG Anaheim Hilton Hotel, near Disneyland. Greatly expanding our ability to host MORE participants, the Sheraton will be a perfect venue in which to welcome THE YOUTH OF Marjory Stoneman Douglas (MSD) High School in Parkland, Florida. With the theme drawn from the opening words of Deuteronomy 31: 'Be Strong and Courageous', our 2019 Good Friday Prayer Breakfast will highlight how the CROSS of Jesus changes the lives of all those who experience it within their lives. Regardless of faith background, whom these youth were on February 13th, 2018, they had been forever changed by the time February 15th dawned. Their willingness, even as High School youth, to come and speak to an audience of hundreds of strangers, is testimony to how the CROSS has impacted their lives. I share this with you now...even before we have begun advertising it on our website, so you may make EARLY contact with Lisa Alonso (so as to reserve your seat/table) at lisa@sccdayl.org. We anticipate that this year's Good Friday presentation will be well attended and this is MY effort to make sure that our Santa Clara community has the FIRST chance to reserve seats/tables before everyone else. Individual seat reservations are $80 apiece (self-parking included) with ENTIRE TABLES of 10 separate individuals being seated together requiring an additional $5 apiece. Varying levels of Corporate Sponsorships for Tables of 10 will also be available with commensurate amenities/opportunities, please contact Lisa Alonso for more information.

Seminarian Cheeyoon is on Retreat with his fellow Seminarians at Mount Angel Seminary in Oregon this weekend and coming week, please keep him in your prayers. As well, our Parish Pastoral Council will be on our annual overnight Retreat this coming Friday into Saturday in Southern Orange County. Your prayerful support will again be appreciated as we review where and how the Holy Spirit is guiding our community.

Finally, when you come back to Mass next weekend, after the visual extravagance of celebrating Christmas, the Church will look pretty simple by comparison. As I have done in the past, when all the poinsettias and trees are disassembled, they are placed out in the corner of the Parking Lot adjoining the Memorial Garden...and they are FREE for the taking...yes, even the trees. I make no guarantees on how they will hold up: after a month indoors, the trees need to be kept somewhat shaded lest the bright sun burn their needles and the poinsettias will probably need to be trimmed back for regrowth. The RED PEPPER Wreaths are available for purchase at $50 apiece. They were freshly made for us in late November and have NOT been treated with any preservatives so they are edible and usable for any recipes in which you desire spicy New Mexico chilis. They will continue to deepen in color and remain viable as indoor decorations for years to come as long as you keep them in a dry, indoor, environment. We have a limited number remaining so please leave your Name and Phone # at our Front Office (714-970-7885) to reserve one, first come, first reserved, at $50 apiece.

So much to anticipate, so much to share...thanks for reading....Happy New Year and remember, you are loved. FKB

JANUARY 5-6, 2019
THE EPIPHANY OF THE LORD
EPHESIANS 3:2-6

ISAIAH 60:1-6

MATTHEW 2:1-12

Some Epiphanies occur in the middle of the night, when you walk into the hotel wall on your way to the bathroom and are immediately reminded that that you are NOT at home! Some Epiphanies occur when the returned University test score reminds you that you are NOT in High School any more. Some Epiphanies occur in the midst of a conversation when the words being exchanged either endear us more closely to one another or confirm an inner hunch that we are better off distancing ourselves from each other. Epiphanies speak of the future, they give us a sense of what is to come, they dispose us to prepare or alert us to future possibilities. Epiphanies provide guidance with fresh insights that beget further investigation or discernment. While the world moves on into the New Year, the Church still lingers upon the mystery of Christmas, the Incarnation (God becoming human) and all that it implies. With the EPIPHANY of the Lord, traditionally highlighted with the arrival of the Magi, (WISE persons from FAR AWAY), we are offered the reminder that we frequently do not recognize something important...even when it (HE) is right under our noses. Each of the Gospels was written, not as historically accurate records but as TESTIMONIES OF FAITH, directed toward specific groups of people: MATTHEW is directed towards the Jews – Jesus is the true king; MARK is written for those who have little background in Jewish faith but are intrigued by the person of Jesus...and are being persecuted and killed because of their interest – Jesus is the Son of Man; LUKE stresses the HUMANITY of Jesus, Jesus is the son of Adam; and JOHN, the only eyewitness observer of Jesus, wants his readers to know that Jesus is the eternal Son of God. Between now and next week, 30 years will come and go and we will hear of the ADULT Jesus being baptized in the River Jordan (a further example of the Gospels not being historical records.) On this Epiphany of 2019, AS WHOM have you come to know Jesus?

Thank you for celebrating the unfolding Christmas Season with our Santa Clara community. With the arrival of Epiphany, we are sent into the New Year with the WISE admonishment to ANTICIPATE the grace of God being present all around us...but in order to find it, we need to seek it, those who seek, find (hint, hint.) To all who contributed to our Christmas Flower fund....thank you! I hope you have been pleased with what our A&E Team did with your generosity. With the arrival of 2019, we not only anticipate our St. Francis School Open House (at the end of the month) but the unfolding of our 2019 CAPITAL DEVELOPMENT CAMPAIGN (which will use the PSA pledge material as the financial collection method)...as well as our upcoming 2019 Good Friday Prayer Breakfast – ‘BE STRONG AND COURAGEOUS....on April 19th featuring the YOUTH of Marjory Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida. July will bring the ordinations to Priesthood of Daniel Seo and Michael Nguyen...and, and, and. So much to pull us forward, so much to anticipate and so much in which to discover the grace of God. Please take a Bulletin home with you and remember, YOU ARE LOVED. FKB

CHANGE IS HERE

80% of students stop practicing the faith at some point during college* . We must change this!

Identifying Catholics on campus is a real challenge for campus ministers. Unless the students decide to join campus ministry on their own, it is virtually impossible to tell who is or isn't Catholic.

Newman Connection's High School Outreach Program helps connect graduating high school seniors to campus ministry by collecting their contact information and passing it on to the campus minister at their chosen college. This in turn allows the campus minister the ability to reach out to the student even before they set foot on campus making the transition to college a smooth one.

We ask that you join our High-Five campaign and help in keeping our students connected to the Catholic Church throughout college. This is an effort we should all unite behind.

Go to newmanconnection.com/donate to join.

Thank you for your support.

PASTOR HOPES HIS PLAN TO BRING CHRIST TO THE PEOPLE WILL REVIVE A BEATEN-DOWN BALTIMORE

John Burger | Sep 06, 2018

Historic basilica will be open all day, sending missionaries out to bring the Good News to city's homeless. Of all of America's major cities, Baltimore has acquired one of the worst reputations in recent years. Riots that broke out after a death involving police and a young African-American male dominated the news in early 2015. And the city recently has had one of the highest homicide rates in the nation.

Meanwhile, homelessness and drug addiction are chronic problems.

Fr. James Boric, a young priest who is pastor of one of the city's highest-profile churches, is all too aware of the difficulties. He wrote recently to his parishioners at the Basilica of the National Shrine of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary about "Eric," a man who begs nearby.

"He is addicted to heroin and various opioids," Fr. Boric wrote. "Because of the poisonous additives in the drugs he consumes, he has sores in his fingers and his arms that literally go down to his bone. He can't even put his hands in his pockets without feeling excruciating pain. Mentally, he is distraught. I can often hear him screaming from the top of his lungs as I pray in the rectory chapel."

The priest also pointed out that there are three African-American women who sleep in the bus stop directly across the street from the Basilica. "I have personally paid for hotel rooms to get them out of the cold on the most brutal of winter nights," he confided. "But at over $100 a night at the local hotel, I can't afford to put them up for long.

"There are hundreds of Erics and bus-stop ladies in Baltimore," he said. "But what are we doing to help them ... to love them ... to bring Christ to them?"

This week, Fr. Boric's response to these and other ills is beginning to take shape. If all goes well, it could be transformative for his parish, and for the city.

As he explained in an interview, it's not "rocket science" to figure out the Christian response to rampant despair, whether it takes the form of violence, homelessness, addiction or other ills. The infrastructure is there: the beautiful and historic 200-year-old basilica and the people who make up the parish. It's just a matter of finding ways to make those elements work together more effectively.

More fundamentally, Fr. Boric knows he is not a savior for Baltimore. Christ already has the title "Savior."

"If the City of Baltimore is going to change, it needs Christ. The only real solution to racism, violence, drug use and broken families is Jesus Christ," he wrote. "Who is going into the neighborhoods and proclaiming the Gospel? The Mormons do it. The Jehovah Witnesses do it. But where are the Catholics?"

In broad outline, the new approach will be both inward- and outward-looking—an approach involving action, but action based on prayer.

Catholics believe Jesus Christ is present and alive in the Blessed Sacrament—the bread that is consecrated during Mass—because at the Last Supper he blessed the bread, saying "This is my body" and instructed his followers to "do this in remembrance of me." His real presence in the Eucharist is manifested both in the consecrated bread the faithful receive at Mass but also in the hosts that are reserved in each church's tabernacle. At special times of prayer, a priest places one of these hosts into a special stand, a "monstrance," that is displayed, or exposed on the altar, for the faithful to venerate and pray in front of. For many, this is a time of meditation, when they believe they can listen to the voice of God speaking silently to their hearts.

So the first part of Fr. Boric's plan is to make this kind of prayer, known as "adoration," available all day long—for anyone who comes into the basilica, even if they are not Catholic and cannot receive the host by mouth. While the basilica has closed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon in the past, its opening hours have now been extended until 8 p.m., with adoration taking place for most of that time.

That change required raising money to pay for additional security, but for Fr. Boric, it's worth it. No longer will those seeking some quiet prayer time, such as the stressed-out office worker or those facing serious illnesses at nearby hospitals, be met by locked bronze doors right before rush hour begins.

Hours for confession also are being extended.

Fr. Boric is confident about his approach. He's seen it work in the past.

"I remember last year a young man came into the basilica, in his 20s, atheist, would consider himself definitely living an alternative lifestyle, and just felt this peace in the basilica and immediately wanted to talk to somebody," he recalled, during an interview in his office across the street from the basilica. "So he came over to my office, we talked, and he joined our [Rite of Christian Initiation for Adults, a process for people to join the Church]. So, there's something about the basilica, you can argue that, but there's more something more about the presence of Christ that leads people. I just want to let that facilitate itself."

The second part of his approach is to use young "urban missionaries" who will work full time in bringing the Church's message of reconciliation to the streets, especially to the marginalized. Fr. Boric wants to emulate a model that has apparently been successful in another large city with similar problems—Denver. The successful program there is called Christ in the City.

And the basilica just happens to have an old, unused convent where urban missionaries can live. Fr. Boric sees them giving up a year of their lives to evangelize, minister, and bring the love of Christ to homeless and addicted residents of the city. The first two missionaries, who are both college students, were to begin their year this week.

"They will not be providing handouts. Rather, they will help the needy get to soup kitchens, shelters, welfare agencies, and various Catholic Charities," he said. "The missionaries will learn the names and the stories of all the homeless around the basilica. They will become friends with them. They will bring Jesus Christ to them."

The priest told his parishioners that he and three seminarians already do something like this, walking through the streets of Baltimore praying the Rosary. "We encounter the people. We invite them into a relationship with Jesus Christ. And we invite them to discover the Catholic faith," he wrote in a letter.

Those efforts brought nine people into the Church this past Easter, and since then, nine other people have asked to become Catholic. "God willing, we will bring another nine or 10 new folks into the Church before Christmas," Fr. Boric said. "Imagine a Baltimore city parish that is bringing 18 people into the Church every year. It won't take long to really impact our streets if we keep bringing them Christ. Once word gets out, the 18 people could turn into 30 or 50 or more. This is how the early Church grew. This is how we will grow again."

Parishioners of the basilica, and Baltimoreans in general, could make a difference in the lives of homeless people and panhandlers—who are usually met by a brush-off—just by getting to know their names and using them.

"A lot of these guys don't hear their names for months," Fr. Boric said. "We can at least do that. We can give them some good news."
